Dear Vladislav Georgievich,

In response to your request, we inform you that statistical information on the average accrued salary of a sample survey of organizations (without small businesses), which is conducted at intervals of 1 every 2 years for October (for odd-numbered years, the last in 2019, the next - for October 2021).

The survey is conducted in order to study the level of wages of employees of organizations in the following groups:

Categories of personnel (managers, specialists, other employees, workers) in accordance with the All-Russian classifier of professions of workers, positions of employees and tariff categories (OKPDTR);

For individual professions and positions, information is not generated, since data on them are unrepresentative (unrepresented), respectively, it is impossible to provide data on wages for specific professions and positions in the framework of this survey.

According to this survey, the average accrued monthly salary of employees of organizations (of all forms of ownership) in the professional group "Web developers and developers of multimedia applications" (including web programmers, PHP programmers) in the Russian Federation for October 2019 was 89427 rubles (RUB).

Information on the survey is published on the official website of Rosstat www.rosstat.gov.ru in the section Publications / Catalog of publications / Information and analytical materials / Information about the salary of employees in organizations by categories of personnel and professional groups of employees.
